Medicines Optimisation Across the Interface

14th June 2012 at the RPS London

This is a joint PCPA and UKCPA Symposia to explore medicines optimisation issues across the interface and examples of best practice. The sessions, comprising a mixture of presentations and facilitated workshops, will be presented by national medicines optimisation specialists from both primary and secondary care.

By the end of this symposia delegates will be able to:

1. List the principles that underpin the need to transform the way medicines are managed in the wider healthcare economy.
2. Demonstrate an understanding of the strategic and patient level activities that can lead to an improvement in the quality, cost effectiveness and safety of prescribing.
3. Develop strategies for more effective joint working between CCG/PCT medicines management teams and trusts.

Who should attend?

The workshops are intended for strategic pharmacists and prescribing leads in primary and secondary care, commissioners and others involved in the strategic planning for local review and implementation of patient pathways which involve medicines.

Please email michelle@pharmacomm.co.uk to register your interest, or call Michelle Kaulbach on 07709 314682 for further details
